

WORKING THE INTERACTIONIST TRADITION CONTRIBUTIONS, LEGACIES, AND PROSPECTS

The University of Salford, Manchester • MediaCityUK Campus

29–31 July 2015

We welcome submissions from scholars using interactionist approaches in established fields including communication, crime and deviance, education, embodiment, emotion, health and illness, identity, organisations and work, and urban life—as well as from those working in newer areas, such as digital cultures, or those deploying innovative methods and techniques.

To include a wider range of sessions the call for papers has been extended to 1st June 2015.

The MediaCityUK Campus is at the heart of six global BBC departments and a mass of independent creative, digital and media organisations. It is a short walk to the Lowry theatre and gallery, Imperial War Museum North and the Manchester United football ground. There are many shops, bars, and restaurants nearby.

Interactionism has a distinguished record as a vigorous way of investigating the diversity, richness and complexity of contemporary social life. This will be a truly interdisciplinary forum for those using interactionist approaches to understand the social and cultural realities of contemporary societies.
